

ARE YOU GOING ON HOLIDAY?

DON'T TAKE PICTURES WITH WILD ANIMALS IN CAPTIVITY AND DON'T SUPPORT TRADE IN THEM!

Millions of tourists travel to exotic destinations every year. Many of them contribute to the illegal trade in wild and endangered animals by taking pictures with them for money.

LET'S ACT RESPONSIBLY!

Slow lorises are unique nocturnal primates belonging in the forest, not in a cage or in front of the lens. For their cuteness, slow lorises often become victims of illegal trade and are offered in tourist places for photographing for money. Vast majority of these slow lorises were caught in the wild and traders ripped their teeth out to make them less dangerous.

LET'S NOT BE PART OF IT!

* By photographing yourself with wild animals for money and buying souvenirs made of endangered species, you support their gradual disappearance from the wild.
